

To Prospective Parents:

Entrusting our children to the care of others is one of the most crucial decisions we make. While researching potential caregivers I came across Kiddie Shack Daycare. I was determined to look at as many home daycares in the DFW area until I found and felt the right fit for our family. It was important to me that my child would be in a "home" setting, with maximum one on one attention from the childcare provider. I realize there are many things to look for in a daycare, most important being the safety and welfare of the child. If you read any article on what to look for they'll tell you the following are important: hours of operation, weekly cost, caregiver to child ratio, experience and education of providers, safety equipment, a variety of learning materials, discipline and daily schedule. I can tell you from firsthand experience that this facility is topnotch in regards to any checklist and in comparison to others in the area. Not only do they complete the expected, they actually have a bond with my child, and that's more important at this stage than anything else. They give her a safe and secure place to learn and interact with other kids her age. I would definitely recommend Sabrina and Donna to anyone I know looking for quality and reliable childcare, they have become not only my choice for childcare; they have become lifelong friends.

Sincerely,

Erin & Tate Hitzeman (Reagan's Mom & Dad)
